External examiners access to module packs

External examiners are usually give an access to Moodle as the 'non-editing Teacher' role. In order for module packs to be available to the examiners but hidden from students it's necessary to create a group and hide the resource based on the group membership.

1. Setting up the group

You can check who is enrolled as a non-editing Teacher using the Current role drop menu.

Click the cog icon on the right hand side and select Groups.

Click Create group and give a suitable title.

Then Add/remove users

Scroll and find the non-editing Teacher role and then Add to the group.

Click Back to Group when finished.

2. Restrict access to resources

The following steps are for restricting a section but the same principles apply to hiding a folder or any other resource item.

With editing turned on, select Edit section from cog icon (ensure the section is not hidden).

Expand the Restrict access section, click Add restriction and then click the Group option.

Note the group setting does apply to non-editing teachers despite the description.

Select the External examiner group and ensure the eye icon is crossed so that the section is hidden entirely from non-group members.

Click Save changes.

The section is only available to the group members and course Teachers.
